

Pawel Gradowski provided landscape design and field reviews for the waterfall sections of the healing gardens and the hospital's entryway at The Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The use of natural rocks and the informal design for the selected pathways within the healing garden area, provide a gracious contrast with the institutional character of the hospital's buildings. A gentle sound of the waterfall and attractive planting material allow the hospital's staff and patients a moment of relaxation.

The waterfalls and associated landscape features needed to be incorporated into the large, existing bedrock that is located in the hospital's garden area.
